11.2.1.3 Constitutional amendments

NPSS opposes the constitutional amendments proposed by the IEEE Board of Directors (BoD) because of the potential deleterious consequences:

Because bylaw changes are not yet defined, the effect of approving the Constitutional Amendment is unknown

Based on available information, representation on the new BoD by the societies will go from the current 11 of 31 members to a number that might be zero. Detail is unknown as the bylaws are not yet complete.

Based on available information, the budget process run by the IEEE Operational Finance Committee will report in through the new Enterprise Board, on which Technical Activities will have but one vote of 6-8 members. They will also control the split of IEEE revenues, 80% of which is today earned by the Technical Societies from their products. How much we will have to support our NPSS activities is unknown.

See pro/con discussion at <http://ta.ieee.org/strategic-planning/tab-in-2030>.

Carried

11.2.1.4 FinCom moves to approve up to $9k per year for WIE travel to WIE conferences and for WIE speakers to attend NPSS conferences as guest speakers at WIE.

Editor note: this motion was corrected on July 22, 2017, at item 10.2

Request to increase the funds for NPSS Women in Engineering events to cover travel costs (not to exceed $1,500/event) for speakers from outside the conference community.

Background: Currently the NPSS supports Women in Engineering (WIE) events at our NPSS conferences by providing up to $5,000/event for food and beverage and audio/video. WIE events are now held at all major NPSS sponsored conferences with attendance at the events increasing every year. Most events feature an invited speaker or leader of a panel discussion who is senior in the conference community. At conferences where the events have been held for several years, we are facing the need to “recycle” speakers from within our conference communities due to the low number of senior women in our technical fields. As such, it is beneficial for our WIE event attendees to invite speakers from outside of the community. Generally, the conferences are able to provide “room comps” for a 2-night stay for speakers who require support, however, these speakers also require support for their transportation and incidentals.

Request to provide one travel grant/year (up to $3,000/year) for an NPSS/WIE member to attend the Women in Engineering International Leadership Conference (WIEI LC) in 2017-2019. The NPSS Awards Chair will administer the grant.

Background: WIE ILC brings together female and male STEM leaders from around the world. In its second year, 2015 WIE ILC sold out with almost double the attendance over the first conference (over 725 individuals). With attendees from over 40 countries, with 89% professional attendees with more than 2 years experience and with an online attendance of over 1,200 individuals, 2015 WIE ILC was ranked as high value by 95% of respondents. The 2016 WIE ILC returned to the San Jose Convention Center on 23-24 May 2016 with attendance of nearly 1,300 on-site registrations and 38 corporate sponsors. The 2016 conference program included 5 tracks – Innovation, Empowerment, Entrepreneurship, Executive Leadership, and Emerging Technology, with Emerging Technology as the fastest growing track. Lisa Lasareck, the WIE Chair for the Engineering in Medicine and Biology Society, stated on the July WIE telecom that the ILC was the best conference that she has ever attended. Our NPSS president offered to support my travel to the WIE ILC in 2016, however, I feel that support for travel to the WIE ILC should be competed and open to all mid- to senior-level NPSS/WIE members. I suggest a three-year term for this grant with the option of renewal depending on the future need for the WIE-ILC.

19 Y, 0 N, 0 abstain. Carried
